

Jettribe

The Jettribe Crew, being based in Southern California, never realized how lush and beautiful the Northwest could be until we hitched up our trailer and went to the Blowsion Surf Slam.

The Surf Slam was hosted and located in Pacific City, Oregon, a small and quiet low key town. The residents tend to be naturalists and prefer to not be in the city. Upon arriving, the Jettribe Crew didn't know what to expect. Surprisingly, after driving through a lot of foresty area the town opened up to a huge beach. When we got there we were greeted with open arms by the Blowsion Crew, who had equipment to flatten the sand for us so we could get our huge trailer set up.

While we were in Oregon we stayed at a quaint bed and breakfast that was absolutely wonderful and made us feel right at home. On Saturday, a huge amount of stand-up riders showed up from all over the world. We were so impressed by these hardcore riders who travelled so far and inhabit the water year round.

Our 2010 and 2011 gear was also well received by all of the hardcore riders. Mike Young was present at the Surf Slam and John Dady was very accommodating. We would also like to thank John for putting on such a great event, you can definitely count Jettribe in for next year! And thanks to all of the riders who showed up, the weekend was a blast and we loved getting to meet all of you!
